Beth Israel Hospital has successfully launched a five-year $60-million building program for new and renovated facilities, highlighted by a $2.5 million gift which will name the new inpatient tower. The news was announced at the hospital's 66th annual meeting held at the Marriott Hotel in Newton.

Annual Report
Issue for 1981

Highlights of 1981

- THE PROJECT, a five-year $60-million building program for new and renovated facilities, was formally initiated after a certificate of need was awarded.
- BI welcomed four new division heads:
 - Dr. Dennis Kasper, Head of Infectious Diseases
 - Dr. Raj Goyal, Head of Gastroenterology
 - Dr. William Grossman, Head of Cardiology
 - Dr. John Sexton, Director of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery
- The ophthalmology (eye) and otolaryngology (ear, nose, and throat) units were expanded. The new facilities, located on the second floor of Kirstein Hall, allow doctors to see patients more efficiently and comfortably in a renovated area providing a pleasant waiting room and an increased number of examining rooms.
- An expanded nurse-midwifery service extends the hospital's scope of health care available to women. It provides 24-hour comprehensive care, including postpartum and routine gynecological needs, and family planning under the leadership of Jo-Anna Rorie, RN, CNM.
- Beth Israel was among six hospitals chosen by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to be studied for its implementation of primary nursing in the hospital setting. The data collected from all of the hospitals will be used by future facilities attempting to implement primary nursing.
- The hospital launched its first year of the Volunteer Health Corps. The program provides teenagers with an opportunity to explore health careers while gaining valuable "hands-on" experience in a hospital setting.
- The Women's Auxiliary sponsored Fashionfest '81 in October, a highly successful fashion show and luncheon. The Auxiliary raised $190,000 this year towards the new CT scanner.
- Major advances in biomedical and clinical research were published by Beth Israel staff members:
 - Use of a clot-dissolving enzyme, streptokinase, was shown to salvage threatened heart muscle after a heart attack by opening blocked coronary arteries.
 - New light was shed on the development of human breast tumors and how they protect themselves against the body's immune system.
 - Allowing mothers sufficient time to develop immunities to a common intestinal viral infection (enterovirus) prevents the infection from being passed before birth from mother to infant.

– Advances in microsurgery made it possible to reverse sterility by reconstructing Fallopian tubes which have been tied or cauterized closed.

– Recycled blood (autotransfusion) reduces costs and risks of blood use during surgery. The process also reduces the risk of hepatitis, mismatching, and sensitivity problems which may result from donated blood.

– Discovery of an enzyme abnormality in the red blood cells of obese people provides a clue to why they may have difficulty losing weight.

• In September, Beth Israel participated in the Third Annual Mission Hill Fair, sponsored by the Mission Hill Planning Council.

• Two new exhibit areas were established to display items of interest to all members of the BI family. One is located in the Feldberg lobby and the other is across from the gift shop.

• PaperChase, a computer program to search the medical literature, was installed in the library of BI. During its first year of operation, more computerized searches of general medical literature were performed than at any other medical library in the country.

• Our close relationship with medicine in Israel continues as evidenced in part by the sabbatical periods spent here by Dr. Dov Front of Rambam Medical Center and Technion School of Medicine and Dr. Moshe Lerner, now of the Sackler School of Medicine, Tel Aviv University. Dr. William Silen, surgeon-in-chief, led a series of surgical seminars at various medical centers in Israel (see feature, p. 5). □

The center has two studios and a control room including full editing facilities. Featured at the dedication and open house was a 15-minute program to be shown daily to the hospital's preoperative patients over the in-house closed-circuit system, "WBIH-TV," Channel 3. The facility and its services also will be available for use by various departments within BI and by other health-care institutions in the area.

Phyllis D. Giller, BI

CT scanner installed. The hospital's new "CT scanner," or computerized tomography scanner, was installed in September. The scanner is an x-ray device that takes cross-sectional views of any part of the body. It gives more information than conventional x rays, and often can be substituted for invasive procedures that involve some degree of discomfort and risk. The scanner collects data in a way similar to that of conventional x-ray equipment, but uses a computer to produce the images. The machine is located in the department of diagnostic radiology. The Women's Auxiliary helped raise funds to purchase the scanner.

The Evolution of Beth Israel as a University Hospital

Ed. Note: Dr. William Silen, surgeon-in-chief at Beth Israel and Johnson & Johnson professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School, came to BI in 1966. In his 1981 address to the 66th annual meeting, he spoke of Beth Israel's evolution as a university hospital, and of its "identity crisis" in the mid-60's. The following are excerpts from his remarks.

The question in 1966 was whether Beth Israel should be a first-rate, clinically-oriented community hospital, or a major research-oriented teaching hospital. Those who opted for the community role felt that the full-time academic staff were there to make respectable scholarly contributions, but that these "mouse doctors" with a commitment to the laboratory bench were not the real "people doctors" that the patients needed. Although everyone connected with the Harvard Medical School and the hospital recognized the importance of excellent teaching to medical students, we were still regarded by the other Harvard hospitals as a poor distant cousin. . . . These were not especially happy days for many of us who felt that the quality of patient care depended upon the strength of the hospital as a center of teaching and research.

There was serious doubt as to whether the BI would ever emerge as a true peer — a full-fledged sister institution — of the other Harvard hospitals. Fifteen years later, it is exhilarating to report that the schizophrenia has dissipated — we are a true, first-rate university hospital with all that this means: We are at the forefront of modern medicine; we recruit the finest young physicians who compete vigorously for positions on our staff; and patients are now referred to us from other Harvard hospitals and, in fact, from many other university hospitals, as well. Remarkably, all of this has been accomplished without sacrificing the humanistic tradition that is characteristic of the BI.

Superior Clinical Care. Teaching and research are generally recognized as distinguishing features of an excellent university hospital, but it is not so often appreciated that the clinical care delivered in university hospitals is usually of superior quality to that in community hospitals.

First, clinical care cannot be first-rate without constant "nourishment" from active, ongoing research in all areas. If important questions are not being formulated — if nobody asks, "How can we do better?" — then the practicing physician becomes increasingly complacent, fixed in his or her ways, and there is an inevitable, downward spiral in skill and knowledge.

Second, there is little doubt that the presence of students and house staff enhances patient care. Not only are these bright young people readily available at a moment's notice day and night, but they bring to the patient curiosity, vigor, and the latest knowledge of physiology and biochemistry. . . .

Third, warm, personal, humanistic care can and should thrive in a university hospital. To those who would disagree, I say, "Let them come to the Beth Israel!" We will show them that being exposed to house staff and students is likely to make the experience of an ill, hospitalized patient much more tolerable and humane. . . .

The inevitable conclusion is that the best care requires the best in research and teaching. They are, in fact, inseparable.

A Nonsectarian Hospital. The founders of Boston's Mt. Sinai Dispensary in 1902 surely did not anticipate a time when a Jewish hospital would be affiliated with a great medical school — let alone Harvard. Their concern was with the clinical needs of an immigrant population. By 1910, however, the Flexner report helped crystallize thinking about the hospital among Boston Jews by emphasizing the role of the institution as a vehicle for clinical education and scientific research, as well as a place for good patient care.

When Beth Israel was dedicated on Townsend Street, Roxbury, in 1916, its by-laws stated that it was "to provide medical and hospital services for the sick and disabled of any race, creed, color or nationality, and to carry on such educational, philanthropic and scientific activities and functions as are a part of efficient modern hospital service." Yet a constant background theme was clear from the beginning: Jewish patients needed a hospital in which they were welcome, and at which their dietary and other religious laws could be observed without shame or ridicule. In addition, Jewish physicians who were excluded from most other excellent hospitals required a place in which to train and practice.

In 1922, a long-range planning committee issued a report emphasizing that the goals of the hospital must include excellence in teaching and research, as well as in patient care. These aspirations demanded proximity to a major medical school, and the decision to place the hospital at its current site on Brookline Avenue was crucial in the rise of the BI to its present position of eminence. . . .

Dementia support group. During the past year, professionals from the behavioral neurology unit began a support group for families of patients with dementia. Dementia is a progressive illness which dramatically affects thinking processes and eventually may interfere with a patient's ability to carry out routine activities.

According to clinical social worker Lissa Kapust, MSW (far right), family members of these patients often have a difficult time understanding, accepting, and coping with the course of this illness.

The support group focuses on practical issues helping family members to restructure day-to-day activities, handle social interactions, and plan for the future. The eight-session program also reviews the neurological and psychological symptoms of dementia and provides information on recent treatment and research efforts.

Phyllis D. Giller, BI

Dental unit grows. According to Dr. Philip Cannon, above, chief of the dental unit, 1981 was one in a continuing series of growth years for the unit, with a 12 percent increase in the number of patients seen.

Some fearful opponents to the new and larger BI suggested that a Jewish hospital in Boston would be a ghetto which would restrict even further the appointment of Jewish doctors to other institutions. Justice Louis Brandeis dissented: "I venture to believe that if this hospital realizes its aspiration of being of the highest quality, the increased respect of the community will result in greater rather than lesser opportunities for Jewish physicians. The Jewish community, in establishing a non-sectarian hospital, will make an important contribution to the community at large."

Legendary Contributions. The foresight and courage of the trustees are underscored by the fact that the new Beth Israel was well on its way to completion before hospital representatives formally approached the Medical School in 1927. The trustees' confidence was justified. Within a few months, the administrative board of the Medical School approved the affiliation, and appointed Dr. Herrman L. Blumgart the person in charge of its program.

Louis E. Kirstein, then chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees, worked constantly to establish and strengthen relationships between the BI and the Medical School. To him, Harvard seemed the key because although the Boston Brahmin families were nominally Congregationalists, Episcopalians, or Unitarians, he believed that their only passionate religious feelings were for Harvard — a kind of Cantabrigian Universalism. If enough Jews were distinguished professors at Harvard and its graduate schools, this holy imprimatur, Kirstein believed, would surely make Jews acceptable in Boston society, and so end anti-Semitism in Boston's banks and other big businesses. . . .

The contributions of Herrman Blumgart in forging the Harvard linkage are legendary, as are those of Dr. Charles Wilinsky in the overall building of the new hospital. Felix Frankfurter felt so strongly about Dr. Blumgart's academic hospital role that he suggested the name of the hospital be changed to "Beth Herrman." In 1938, when the hospital celebrated its first 10 years on the new site, the accomplishments of those years were praised by Frankfurter, who wrote: "I know of nothing in Jewish effort in my lifetime in this country in which Jews may take more just pride than in all that Beth Israel signifies."

University Hospital Par Excellence. As the years have passed, it is increasingly clear that in the eyes of Harvard and the rest of the world, the BI has emerged as a university hospital par excellence, but with a heart to boot. It is obvious that Harvard has benefited enormously from contributions of the BI faculty. BI professors have given profoundly and unselfishly to further the objectives of the Medical School. Howard Hiatt brought to the BI an enormously talented group of young scholars who put the hospital on the academic map. David Freiman and Norman Geschwind have been vital forces in curricular reforms which have influenced and will continue to influence medical education throughout the world. John Hedley-Whyte and John Nemiah have served as secretaries of the faculty of the Medical School. We have been instrumental in developing outstanding collaborative programs in urology, orthopedic surgery, and more recently in medicine and in the formation of a Longwood Area Trauma Center. Teaching of Harvard Medical students on all services has received wide acclaim.

In return, Harvard has given endowed chairs in pathology, medicine, and neurology to BI. Additional endowed professorships in anesthesia and surgery are now at the BI, and I believe it's fair to say that we played a major role in the development of an autonomous department of anesthesia within the school itself. The transfer to the BI of the Harvard-Thorndike Laboratories, the oldest clinical research unit extant, has enormously enhanced the stature of the hospital within the academic community.

So here we are. The original, almost desperate necessity for the establishment of the Beth Israel as a Jewish hospital no longer exists. Why, then, should the BI, as a university hospital, continue to receive such major support from the Jewish community?

First, when the Jewish immigrants originally came to this country of freedom and opportunity, it was with the proviso that they care for their own. I believe we have succeeded admirably in that respect, but as recompense for all that we have been given in this great country, I think we have a debt to repay.

We must support an outstanding university hospital which is dedicated to excellence in all spheres. It is vital that the Jewish community lead the way in providing opportunities for all colors and creeds, as proposed in the original by-laws of this first completely nonrestricted hospital in Boston. We have struggled to develop a true university hospital which provides the best medical care available by reason of first-class research and teaching. We must maintain these standards by insisting upon excellence in all spheres, and as those we have trained now populate large university hospitals throughout the country and around the world, we must insist on pre-eminence in our own institution at all levels. . . .

Nader is Sidel lecturer. Ralph Nader was the 1981 Dr. Nathan Sidel lecturer at Beth Israel. His topic was "The Patient as Sovereign." A graduate of Harvard Law School, Nader has built a national network of citizen action groups concerned with areas ranging from tax reform to medicine. The Sidel lecture was established in 1968 by a grateful patient in honor of Dr. Sidel, now a consultant in medicine at Beth Israel.

Finland gives Thurman lecture. Dr. Maxwell B. Finland (right), George Richards Minot Professor of Medicine, Emeritus at Harvard Medical School, gave the seventh annual Dr. Aaron Thurman Memorial Lecture at Beth Israel in November. Dr. Finland, who also is Honorary Director of the Thorndike Memorial Laboratory, Boston City Hospital, has been prominent in the academic medical community for more than 50 years. His talk was titled, "Doting: Looking Back, Around, and Ahead."

The Thurman Lecture was established in 1975 by the family of the late Dr. Aaron Thurman. Traditionally on the subject of medical ethics, the lecture was part of the series of Seminars in Medicine at Beth Israel.

Silen Leads Seminars in Israel

In September, Dr. William Silen led a series of surgical seminars in Israel, sponsored by the American Physicians' Fellowship. The seminars were held in medical centers in Haifa, Jerusalem, Beersheba, and Tel Aviv. From Strength to Strength

It has been a busy and productive year. The new consolidated department of medicine has done well, retaining its special BI character but growing in academic and clinical strength as predicted, thanks to Dr. Eugene Braunwald's leadership and the full support of our physicians in both private practice and academic positions. The department's major first-year task was to recruit outstanding heads of its divisions of cardiovascular diseases and gastroenterology, and with the arrivals of Dr. William Grossman and Dr. Raj Goyal, that has been accomplished. Dr. Edwin Salzman of the division of surgery has taken on the added role of deputy editor of the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine. In obstetrics and nursing, the midwifery service is flourishing under its new chief, Ms. Jo-Anna Rorie. Orthopedics under Dr. Augustus White has started its back pain school, and radiology, under Dr. Sven Paulin, is fine-tuning its newly arrived CT scanner.

Throughout the year you've read of important research developments from our laboratories — dissolving the blood clot that causes the heart attack, biochemical insights into obesity, a new understanding of how cancer cells masquerade their abnormality to forestall recognition by the body as foreign, and many other advances. Also during the year, our relationship with medicine in Israel has continued, evidenced in part by the sabbatical periods spent here by Dr. Dov Front of Rambam Hospital and Technion School of Medicine and Dr. Moshe Lerner, now of Tel Aviv.

Our vice president for nursing, Mrs. Joyce C. Clifford, was elected president of the American Society of Nursing Service Administrators, an organization of some 3,000 nursing directors. With the retirement of Miss Anne V. Cronin, the personnel division continues its tradition of excellence with the arrival of Mrs. Laura Avakian, and now enjoys the new title, division of human resources, as its complex role further grows in these trying times. Another title change is that of public relations to public affairs with the broadening of its scope of effort under Mr. J. Antony Lloyd. Its most recent addition has been the Anna and Samuel Pinanski Video Production Center which will help us communicate better with patients, staff, and the community.

THE PROJECT. I want to commend specifically the intensive efforts made by Mr. Eugene C. Wallace, director of fiscal services, and Mr. Frank Sullivan, director of facilities planning and engineering, in developing and successfully pursuing our Certificate of Need application for the major clinical improvement program to which we can now look forward, THE PROJECT. For some years we've known that our recent facility improvements — the Feldberg Building, renovations in Stoneman and Kirstein and elsewhere, and the acquisition of the Libby Building from Emmanuel College — would not meet all the needs of tomorrow. We started with thinking about the two greatest pressures — the crowding of the Berenson Emergency Unit, and the limitations both in labor and delivery and on the obstetrics floors themselves. Careful study led to the conclusion that each function would require additional space, and since there was none to be carved out of existing hospital structures, new construction was called for. Thanks to thoughtful planning led by Mr. Frank Sullivan, Dr. David G. Freiman, executive vice president Mr. David Dolins, a whole team of clinical and administrative leaders, and our architects, Martha and Elliot Rothman, we emerged with a proposal, THE PROJECT.

The Charles A. Dana Research Building is already in construction, because it could bypass most of the lengthy Certificate of Need process which the balance of THE PROJECT has had to negotiate, and because its financing has not depended upon community fundraising or on a bond issue. This structure — four floors of laboratories atop the Slosberg-Landay and Sherman Buildings — will fulfill our Trustees' commitment to Harvard made nearly a decade ago when the Thorndike Laboratory moved to Beth Israel from Boston City Hospital.

The major portion of THE PROJECT concerns itself with better care for emergency patients and inpatients, and the most prominent aspects are two new buildings. One is a four-story addition atop the Feldberg Building which we have titled the West Tower prior to designation by a donor. It will contain the new Labor & Delivery Suite on one floor, an enlarged Brezner Respiratory-Surgical ICU (Intensive Care Unit) and a new Pulmonary-Medical ICU on another, plus two floors of medical/surgical beds to replace the vintage 1929 beds in our Gryzmish Building.

The other major new structure will extend from the present entrance of the Berenson Emergency Unit, allowing for its expansion and modernization. Its basement will contain an enlarged radiation therapy unit and the fourth floor of this new Northwest Building will allow for major enlargement and modernization of the Morse Medical ICU.

The Libby Building basement will be expanded to house computer medicine, and a tunnel will connect Libby to the main hospital complex.

Renovations and improvements in other areas of the hospital will also be carried out. THE PROJECT will cost close to $60 million, and we are anticipating a bond issue of about $67 million to help finance that package as well as to "roll over" the debt from our first bond issue, which got the Feldberg Building underway.

These are not easy times for America's hospitals, which face growing regulation, reimbursement restrictions, and increasing competition. Our goal is not merely to survive, but to flourish in order to meet the responsibility you have placed on us, and in order to continue to justify the confidence, loyalty, and support with which you have blessed us. In the twinkling of an eye, almost, the year 2000 will be upon us. Today we are working for Beth Israel to move into that new century exemplifying the call under which we have gathered today, "From strength to strength." □

More research space. Construction on the new Charles A. Dana Research Building is progressing according to schedule, with occupancy slated for summer 1982. The four-story structure above the Slosberg-Landay Building will provide space for the Harvard-Thorndike Laboratories at Beth Israel and other biomedical research in the departments of medicine, surgery, obstetrics/gynecology, orthopedics, anesthesia, neurology, radiology, and pathology.

Norman B. Leventhal
Beth Israel Annual Meeting
November 8, 1981

A Year of Pride

All of us in the BI family have close ties to the hospital, directly or indirectly; all of us support its goals of the best patient care and the highest quality of research and scholarship; all of us are concerned about how Beth Israel will meet the challenges of tomorrow. I am pleased to report to you that it is meeting them well — that Beth Israel is successfully moving from strength to strength.

Thanks to the extraordinary management talent of Dr. Rabkin and his administrative and clinical colleagues, the hospital is in sound financial condition — no easy task in these difficult times of an inflationary economy and increasing government regulation. Never has it been more important for us to have our fiscal house in order.

We ended this year with a favorable bottom line, a necessary first step to make possible the financing of THE PROJECT, a five-year program that is our most ambitious step since the move to Brookline Avenue a half-century ago. It is designed to help take us through the rest of this century and into the 21st.

Our sound fiscal management and the fact that we saw more patients than had been predicted, also made possible an important contribution to the strength of the community. Thus, we were able last year to reduce voluntarily and substantially our support from the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, lightening somewhat the burden on our sister agencies in a time of great need.

Our close relationship with the Jewish community, where our roots and much of our support remain, continues to grow and to strengthen. Through such agencies as Jewish Community Housing for the Elderly, Jewish Family and Children's Service, and the Jewish Multi-Service Center, we are able to maintain our historical ties of service and mitzvot.

I can also report progress in the life of MASCO, the Medical Area Service Corporation. Under the very capable leadership of president Steven Trittman, and a committee chaired by our own Stanley Feldberg, MASCO is bringing together new services and plans to benefit all of us in the Longwood Medical Area — more effective traffic control, improved security, shared services, and planning for a better place to live and work.

As you are doubtless aware, the Medical Area Total Energy Plant, now known as CMC or Cogeneration Management Corporation, is today providing us steam and chilled water. During the year, the plant has moved closer to the day when the cogeneration of electricity, for which it was designed, will finally happen within approved environmental limits.

All in all, it has been a year of which we can be proud. I am grateful to the management, medical and nursing staffs, and all our employees who continue to make Beth Israel the great hospital that it is. And I am grateful to my fellow trustees, with whom I am privileged to serve, for their dedication and thoughtful guidance. I welcome our newly-elected trustees, and I think I can assure them that their terms will be both exciting and rewarding. □

New Trustees of Beth Israel Hospital

The Beth Israel Hospital Association elected twelve new members to its board of trustees at the 66th Annual Meeting.

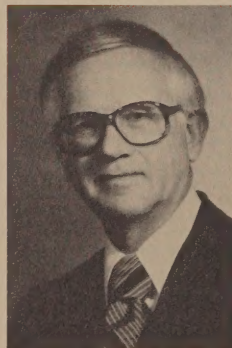

Lawrence Ansin is president of Joan Fabrics Corporation, an upholstery fabric manufacturing firm, and co-chairman of the American Textile Upholstery Division. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Wharton School (BA and BS), he has served on the Board of Higher Education of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as lecturer at the Harvard Business School, and as trustee of the University of Lowell. Ansin is active in community organizations as president of the Lowell Re-Development Committee, and as trustee of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged and of Grove Hall Savings Bank. He and his wife Tabor live in Lexington with their children Lisa, 11, and Gregory David, 8.

Robert L. Beal, who served on the buildings and grounds committee at Beth Israel before becoming a trustee, is general partner and executive vice president of Beal Companies, a real estate firm. Past president and current director of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, he is also director of the Mass. Association of Realtors and the Mass. Taxpayers Foundation, Inc., and co-founder and director of the Ripon Society. Beal has been active in community organizations as past president and current trustee of the Boston Zoological Society and as a member of the visiting committee of the School of the Museum of Fine Arts. Beal, a Boston resident, is trustee of the Boston Committee, Inc., past director of the Beacon Hill Civic Association, and director of the Boston Municipal Research Bureau.

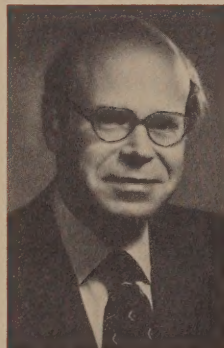

Martin S. Berman served on the finance and budget sub-committees at Beth Israel before becoming a trustee. He is president of Berman and Sons, Inc., realtors, and general partner of Berman Central, Berman West, and Berman North Realities. Berman has been active in professional organizations as past president of the Rental Housing Association and the New England Chapter, Institute of Real Estate Management, and as corporator of the Grove Hall Savings Bank. He is a trustee of the New England School of Law, his alma mater (JD), and holds a bachelor of science degree from Boston University. Berman, a Boston resident, has been a principal in community organizations such as the Boston Chapter of the Red Cross, the Mass. Bay United Fund, and the Mayor's Committee on Minority Housing. In addition, he is director of the Jewish Big Brother Association and building trustee of the Boston Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Lawrence Ansin

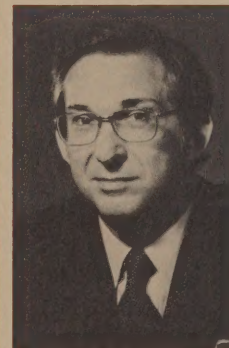

Albert I. Levine

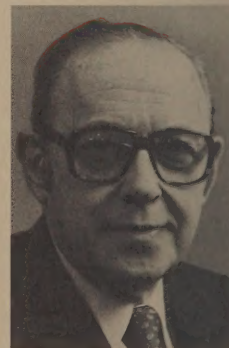

Robert L. Beal

Nancy L. Marks

Martin S. Berman

Albert J. Sandler

Albert I. Levine has been active at Beth Israel as a life member of the Men's Associates before becoming a trustee. He is the owner of a box manufacturing company, the Harvard Folding Box Co., Inc. Levine holds a bachelor of arts degree from Boston University, and is president of the Brandeis University Council. Active with the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, he is a member of the executive board and board of trustees, and is past campaign chairman. He and his wife Celia are Newton residents. They are parents of Richard, who lives in Medfield, and Robert, of Atlanta, Georgia.

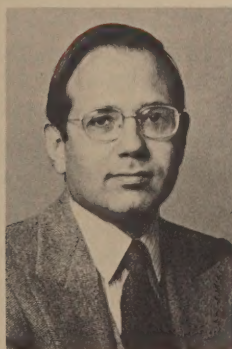

Nancy L. Marks, a professional volunteer and graduate of Goucher College, has been active at Beth Israel before becoming a trustee. She is a board member of the Women's Auxiliary, a past volunteer in the outpatient clinics, and a "Grey Lady" during World War II. Active in the community, Marks is a member of the Massachusetts Mental Area Board and Human Rights Committee, the Boston Symphony Council, and the League of Women Voters. She is a trustee of the New England Villages Board of Governors and the Edna Stein Academy, and past chairwoman of the New England Camphill Movement. Marks's professional affiliations include General Cinema Corporation and Marks International Corporation. She and her husband Harry, Chestnut Hill residents, are parents of Jeffrey, Peter, Cathy, Jane, and Susan.

Albert J. Sandler is treasurer of Fenton Shoe Corporation, a manufacturing firm. Active in community and civic organizations, he is a member of the board of directors of Temple Israel, and of the Jewish Rehabilitation Center. Sandler and his wife Frances, Swampscott residents, are parents of Leslie, Dorie, and Alan.

Ruth B. Fein is president of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, the first woman to occupy this position. In addition, she has served CJP as vice president and as chairwoman of the Social Planning and Allocations Committee. Active in professional organizations, Fein is vice president of the American Jewish Historical Society and a member of the board of the National Hillel Commission and the National Foundation for Jewish Culture. A graduate of Goucher College (BA) and Johns Hopkins University (MA), Fein is past president of the Chapel Hill Chapter of the League of Women Voters and was on the state board of the North Carolina League. She and her husband Rashi, Boston residents, are parents of Alan, Michael, Karen, and Bena.

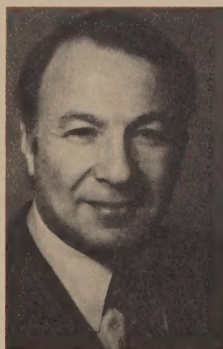

Ruth B. Fein

Edwin N. Sidman

Edwin N. Sidman is vice president and general partner of the Beacon Companies, a Boston-based development firm. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan and a doctor of laws from Harvard Law School. Sidman has been active in the community as trustee and vice chairman of the facilities planning committee of Combined Jewish Philanthropies, and as director of the Jewish Community Center of Greater Boston and of Jewish Community Housing for the Elderly. In addition, he has served as chairman on the Governor's Commission to Simplify Rules and Regulations. He and his wife Paula live in Newton with their children Hope, 11, and Matthew, 9.

Jay Lawrence Fialkow is a partner in the law firm of Kay, Fialkow, Richmond and Rothstein, and a member of the board of directors of the Home Owners Federal Savings and Loan Association. A graduate of Harvard College (AB) and Boston University Law School (LLB), he is a member of the Harvard Fund Council, and former assistant attorney general for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Fialkow is president of the New England Israel Histadrut, chairman of Combined Jewish Philanthropies' upgrade committee, and vice president and member of the board of Temple Mishkan Tefila, Newton. He has also served the community as past president of the Jewish New England National Fund. A Newton resident, he and his wife Maretz are parents of David, Debra Zabludowski, and Linda Sternberg.

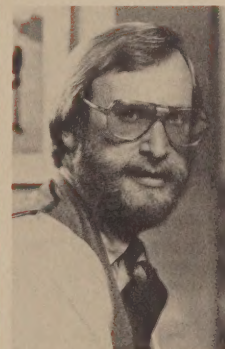

Jay Lawrence Fialkow

Richard N. Silverman

Richard N. Silverman is a senior executive and past president of Van Leer, U.S.A., a film manufacturing firm. A member of the World Business Council and past chairman of the New England Chapter of the Young President's Organization, he has served the business community as president of VacTech Research Company, and as executive vice president and treasurer of Metal Film Company. Silverman, a graduate of Brown University (AB), is a trustee of the Brimmer and May School, the Boston Ballet, and Goodwill Industries. His other community interests include serving as corporator of Dorchester Savings Bank and Children's Museum, and as co-chairman of the finance committee of the Japanese House at Children's Museum. Silverman and his wife Sandra, Waban residents, are parents of Laurie, 24, and Thomas, 24.

William G. Finard is a realtor who served on the long range planning committee at Beth Israel before being named a trustee. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Colgate University and a master of education from Boston College. His professional affiliations include the Building Owners and Managers Association of the International Conference of Shopping Centers. A trustee and past president of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged, Finard is also a trustee and member of the investment committee of Grove Hall Savings Bank. He and his wife Andrea live in Weston with their children, Todd Benjamin, 9, and Jacqueline Beth, 6.

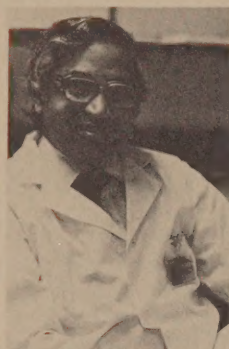

William G. Finard

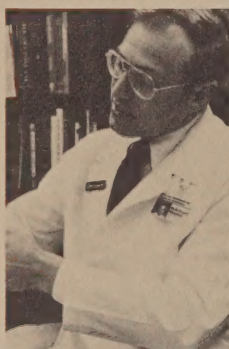

Neil M. Strauss

Neil M. Strauss served on the finance, special projects, and budget committees at Beth Israel before becoming a trustee. A graduate of the University of Massachusetts (BA), he is an associate of Steven J. Cumin Insurance Agency, and is affiliated with Two-Ten Associates, an insurance firm. Active in the community, Strauss is a member of the Anti-Defamation League and of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies. He and his wife Linda are residents of Weston.

Four New Division Heads Welcomed in 1981

Raj Goyal, MD has been appointed head of the division of gastroenterology in the department of medicine at Beth Israel. An associate editor of the journal Gastroenterology, Dr. Goyal is an accomplished clinician and teacher as well as an outstanding research scientist. His research interests are directed towards the functions of the esophagus, the tube leading from the throat to the stomach. He is specifically known for his work in unveiling the neurotransmitters (chemical substances) involved in the function of the esophagus and its sphincters, ring-like muscles that close the esophagus at both ends. "We have the best GI (gastrointestinal) surgical department in the country and excellent clinical gastroenterologists. I hope to put together some focused experts in different areas of gastroenterology so that this can become a division that is second to none," Dr. Goyal said. Dr. Goyal received both his bachelor's degree (in medicine and surgery) and MD degree in India. After postgraduate studies at Yale, he joined Baylor University as instructor in medicine and later became associate professor of medicine. In 1973, he moved to the University of Texas Health Sciences Center in Dallas where he was appointed professor. In 1978 he was appointed professor and chief of the division of gastroenterology at the University of Texas Health Sciences Center in San Antonio. Dr. Goyal is also Mallinckrodt Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School.

William Grossman, MD, the new head of the division of cardiology in the department of medicine, comes to Beth Israel from Brigham and Women's Hospital where he was director of its cardiac catheterization laboratory. Dr. Grossman will continue his research on congestive heart failure and disorders of the function of the left ventricle in patients with coronary artery disease.

In particular, he is excited about new developments in the treatment of patients with acute myocardial infarction (heart attack), such as the pioneering work of Dr. John Markis and colleagues in the cardiac catheterization laboratory at BI. "Historically, the BI has been a leader in new developments in the cardiovascular field, and I hope to continue the department's outstanding record of productivity," Dr. Grossman said.

A graduate of Yale Medical School, Dr. Grossman trained in internal medicine at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. In 1971, he joined the department of medicine of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill as a clinician, teacher, and researcher. It was there that he wrote his textbook, Cardiac Catheterization and Angiography, the standard of reference in his field. In 1975, he returned to the Brigham. Dr. Grossman is professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School.

Dennis Kasper, MD, was appointed head of the division of infectious diseases in the department of medicine. His research interests have centered on the pathogenesis of bacterial infections, or why bacteria cause infections, and the development of immunologic methods for preventing infections. "My goals here are to build an infectious disease division which gives excellent care to the hospital patient and provides a healthy scientific environment which encourages the development of the careers of young investigators," Dr. Kasper said. He received his MD from the University of Illinois in 1967. After his internship and junior residency at Cornell and New York Hospital, he spent three years in the army at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research. In 1972 he went to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital as a senior resident. He then joined the Boston City Hospital as a fellow in infectious diseases at the Channing Laboratory, where he remains as the Channing's associate director. An associate editor of Reviews of Infectious Diseases, Dr. Kasper is also medical director of the microbiology laboratory at Beth Israel and an associate professor at Harvard Medical School.

John Sexton, DMD, MSD is head of oral and maxillofacial surgery, a new service of the dental unit at Beth Israel for the treatment of malfunctions and deformities of the face and jaw.

Dr. Sexton treats outpatients for such routine oral surgery as extractions, minor mouth surgery, biopsies, salivary gland disease, joint disease related to the jaw, and removal of wisdom teeth and benign small tumors. He also treats patients with facial deformities or malfunctions of the face and jaw.

"Oral and maxillofacial surgery will be integrated as a surgical subspecialty at Beth Israel," said Dr. Sexton. "The unit will work in conjunction with other subspecialties such as plastic surgery, otolaryngology, and general surgery of the head and neck." Dr. Sexton earned his DMD from Tufts Dental School and completed a four-year residency in oral and maxillofacial surgery in a combined program with Boston University Medical Center, Boston City Hospital, and Tufts-New England Medical Center. He also received a master's degree in oral surgery from Boston University. Currently, he is assistant professor of oral and maxillofacial surgery at BU Medical Center.

When you are thinking about sending a telegram, flowers, or candy, why not send the thought that really counts—a special gift to Beth Israel Hospital in honor or in memory of someone you wish to remember.

Your gift of five dollars or more may be designated to a specific hospital purpose such as heart research or the medical library, or it may be unrestricted. Those you wish to honor, or their families, will receive your warm wishes through a personal acknowledgement from Beth Israel of your gift in their names. And, the Hospital's work of health care will be enhanced.

Please complete the reverse side of this note and forward it to the development division of Beth Israel Hospital on the next occasion when you want your thoughts to be with someone. Attached to this note is a prepaid, self-addressed envelope for your mailing convenience.

Thank you.

Planned Gift

Mr. Leo Beckwith

Beth Israel's Planned Giving program offers new opportunities for charitable support. It provides various ways of planned giving which offer immediate benefits to the donor and long-range benefits to both the donor and the hospital.

Planned Giving makes it possible for those who might want to help Beth Israel to do so without parting with spendable income. The Planned Giving options often give donors an increase in spendable income, as well as an income for life, an immediate tax deduction, an avoidance of capital gains tax, and a possible reduction in costly estate taxes.

Annual Meeting

October, calls for a new four-story building (the "West Tower") on top of the present Feldberg Building, a second four-story structure (the "Northeast Building") extending from the hospital's original 1928 building, and extensive renovation and improvement of other areas of the hospital.

More than 650 friends of the hospital — a record attendance — heard development committee chairman Stanley H. Feldberg announce that pledges and other indications by various donors in the first phase of capital fundraising now exceed $5.6 million. These gifts include the largest single capital contribution to be made by a family in the history of the hospital, a $2.5 million pledge. The new West Tower will bear that family name, to be announced at a later date.

The West Tower will contain a new labor and delivery suite on one floor. Another floor will house a new pulmonary/medical intensive care unit, made possible by a major gift from another donor, Carl and Ruth Shapiro. That floor will also house the relocated and refurbished Brezner Respiratory/Surgical Intensive Care Unit. Medical and surgical inpatient rooms will occupy the remaining two floors, replacing facilities dating from 1928. The Northeast Building will incorporate an expanded and modernized Berenson Emergency Unit, enlarged radiation therapy department, and enlarged and modernized Morse Medical Intensive Care Unit which focuses primarily on cardiac care.

The basement of the Libby Building will be expanded to house computer medicine, and that building will be connected to the main hospital complex by a new tunnel.

Details of THE PROJECT were described at the annual meeting by Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, president of Beth Israel, who also reviewed the events of the year. Norman B. Leventhal, chairman of the board, told the audience of trustees, physicians, employees, families, and other friends that the hospital's ties to Boston's Jewish community continue to grow and to support the hospital's mission of excellence in patient care, teaching, and research (see related articles, pages 6 and 7).

The principal speaker, Dr. William Silen, surgeon-in-chief, described Beth Israel's evolution as a university hospital (see related article page 3). Dr. Silen, who is also Johnson and Johnson Professor of Surgery at Harvard Medical School, stressed the importance of excellence in research and teaching to quality patient care.

"The best care requires the best in research and teaching," Dr. Silen said. "They are in fact inseparable."

The chief surgeon described the role of medical students and house officers in helping to provide patient care, telling the gathering that "warm, personal, humanistic care can and should thrive in a university hospital."

Two new exhibit areas — one opposite the gift shop, and a kiosk in the Feldberg Lobby — will feature displays of interest to all members of the BI family. The new lobby kiosk (right) serves as an information center for employees, patients, and visitors. The cases on the sides of the kiosk hold announcements of current and upcoming events, and information about the Longwood medical community. Two television monitors in the kiosk will relay video images from the new Pinanski Video Production Center. The exhibit area across from the gift shop (above) has held a collection of historical photos, a display of trophies and photos relating to BI's sports teams, a panorama of volunteer services, an energy display, and the annual BI photo exhibit.

"To those who would disagree," Dr. Silen declared, "I say, 'Let them come to Beth Israel!' We will show them that being exposed to house staff and students is likely to make the experience of an ill, hospitalized patient much more tolerable and humane."

Dr. Silen described Beth Israel's growth as a Harvard-affiliated teaching hospital and the continuing role of the Jewish community that founded the institution out of necessity and continues its active support of the BI as a major health-care resource for all.

"The trustees in their difficult decisions have always made extremely wise choices at the most crucial junctures," Dr. Silen concluded. "I only hope and pray that our dedication to the opening of new frontiers, to the Judaic tradition of education and knowledge, will be the gift in perpetuity of our trustees to humanity as a whole."

A highlight of the meeting was a presentation to Mrs. Theresa C. Whitman, honorary trustee, of a special citation for a "Century of Service." Mrs. Whitman, adviser to co-chairmen Eliot Snider and Doris Lewis in preparing the annual meeting, devoted a combined total of more than 100 years of service to the hospital itself and to the Beth Israel Women's Auxiliary.

Mr. Snider presented certificates to newly-elected honorary trustees Leo Beckwith, Nathan Buchman, Sumner L. Feldberg, Sadie Golub, Frank Kopelman, Richard P. Morse, Samuel Shapiro, and Burton Stern.

New trustees elected at the meeting were Lawrence Ansin, Robert L. Beal, Martin S. Berman, Ruth B. Fein, Jay L. Fialkow, William G. Finard, Albert I. Levine, Nancy L. Marks, Albert J. Sandler, Edwin N. Sidman, Richard Silverman, and Neil Strauss.

Elected officers of the board were Norman B. Leventhal, chairman; Eliot Snider, first vice chairman; David I. Kosowsky, Phillip J. Nexon, Frank A. Morse, George J. Katz, vice chairmen; Jay E. Orlin, secretary; Steven J. Cohen and Allan S. Bufferd, assistant secretaries; Alan W. Rottenberg, treasurer; and Henry T. Mann, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. Helen Riemer, vice president of the BI Women's Auxiliary, and Evan L. Weston, president of the Men's Associates, delivered reports of the year's activities of their organizations, and both presented the hospital with checks resulting from fundraising efforts.

Nearly 50 physicians and dentists were honored at the meeting for their years of service, ranging from 25 to more than 50. □

A century of service. Mrs. Theresa C. Whitman, a familiar and highly respected figure at Beth Israel for many years, died Saturday, January 23 after a long illness. During the annual meeting, Dr. Rabkin had presented a special citation to Mrs. Whitman for a "century of service" made up of 55 years of service to the hospital, and 45 years to its Women's Auxiliary. The citation read: "The Beth Israel Hospital awards this special citation to Theresa C. Whitman, whose matchless contributions to the Hospital from its first fundraising drive, and to the Women's Auxiliary from its foundation, make up more than a century of service as dedicated supporter, adviser, and friend to the Hospital. In recognition and appreciation of her devotion and accomplishments, we award this citation at the 66th Annual Meeting of the Beth Israel Hospital Association, this eighth day of November 1981."

In Memoriam

Over the past year, Beth Israel lost several friends and colleagues whose passing the hospital mourned at the annual meeting. Said Chairman Eliot Snider: "They gave much of themselves to the BI personally and professionally. Although we are saddened by their loss, the memories of their friendship and of their contributions to our hospital are alive and with us today. We shall miss them." The names are:

Dr. Max J. Bulian, Dr. Sydney Grace, Dr. Sidney Levin, Dr. Malvina Stock, and Dr. Helen Tartakoff, all of the medical staff; Daniel E. Price, Honorary Member of the Board of Trustees; Sumner M. Gerstein, Honorary Trustee; Arthur Altschuler and Bertram A. Druker, Trustees; Sharon Miske, RN and Deborah Smith, RN, of the nursing staff; and Murray Golub, Adele Melrose, and Aida Surls, employees. □

Berk Honored for Long Service

Arthur Berk, MD was recognized at the annual meeting for 50 years of distinguished service to Beth Israel Hospital.

Dr. Berk, a psychiatrist and neurologist, was an intern at BI in the early days of the hospital when it was located on Townsend Street in Roxbury.

He was graduated from Tufts Medical School in 1921, the youngest member of his class. A clinical professor of psychiatry at Tufts, Dr. Berk taught from 1926 to 1960. He was also the head of the Department of Nervous and Mental Diseases at the Boston Dispensary.

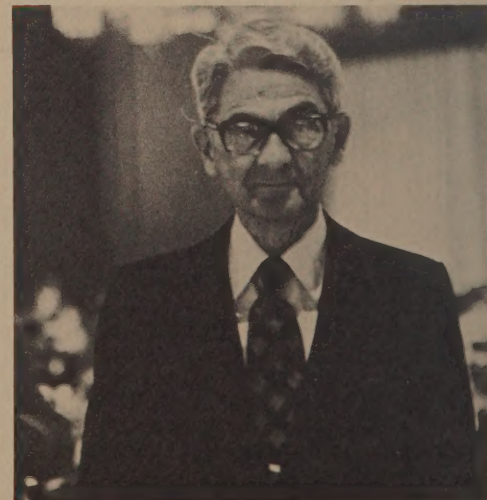

Dr. Berk is the author of numerous articles published in leading medical journals. He has relinquished his writing and teaching, but still retains a private practice of psychiatry and neurology. □

BI in the News

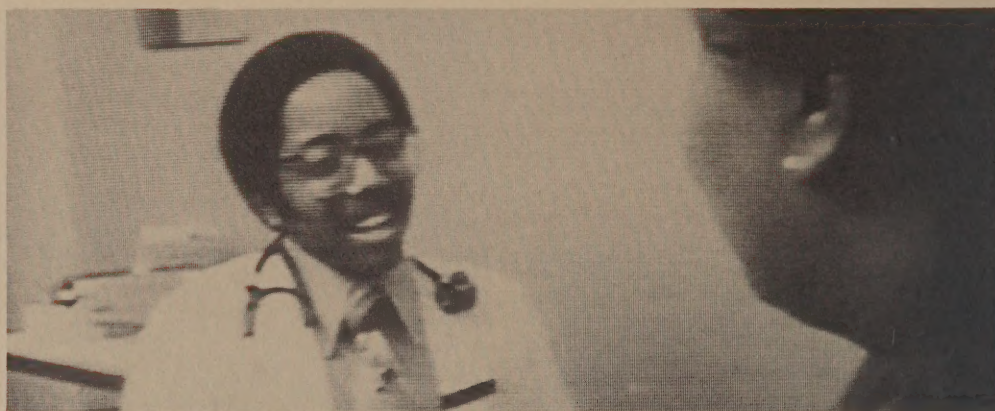

Beth Israel Hospital continues to be a frequent source of news for the general press.

Recently, for example, research published in The New England Journal of Medicine showing that a common flu can be fatal to newborn infants gained wide exposure. The study, headed by Dr. John Modlin, showed that pregnant women who contract a common intestinal viral infection (enterovirus) within about a week of delivery can transmit the disease to their infants before protective antibodies have been acquired.

The research was reported in the Boston Globe, Boston Herald American, the New York Times, the New York Daily News, the Associated Press, the United Press International, and newspapers throughout the country. Local radio and television stations including WCVB-TV5 News, WBZ-TV4 News, and CBS Radio Network News also covered the story.

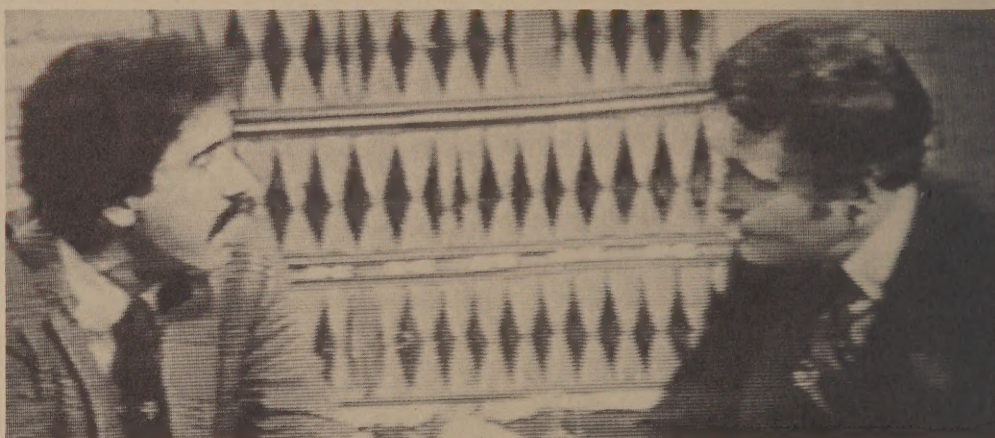

The broadcast media often call upon the expertise of Beth Israel staff for television programs on health care topics. Recently, BI staff members have been seen on various news programs on channels 2, 4, 5, and 7, and on CBS and NBC; several nationally syndicated "Evening Magazine" segments; Dr. Timothy Johnson's "Healthbeat" series and several specials; and science programs in Great Britain, Germany, Japan, and Canada.

News releases reporting the accomplishments of employees are regularly covered by local and hometown newspapers. In other local coverage, the Jewish Times and the Jewish Advocate give considerable attention to general news at Beth Israel.

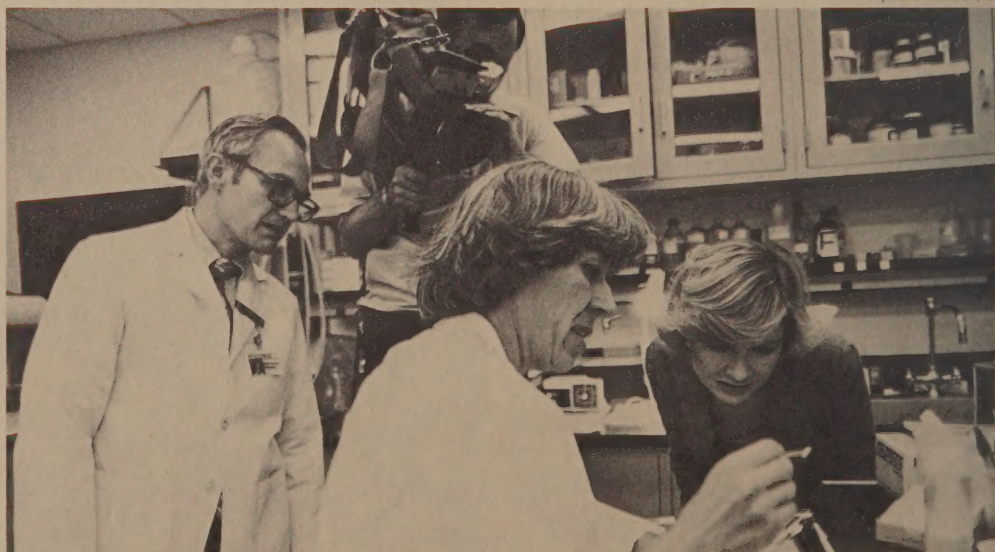

A fall television highlight was the September broadcasting of "In Sickness and in Health," a documentary on primary care medicine. Hosted by Dr. Timothy Johnson, the hour-long program featured Beth Israel Ambulatory Care (BIAC). Produced for ABC by WCVB-TV5, the special included extensive interviews with Dr. Thomas Delbanco, medical director of BIAC, and videotaping of Dr. Kenneth Robinson, shown above. Also included were physician rounds on the inpatient units and primary care rounds.

As of September, Dr. William Taylor (left), of the BI Ambulatory Care center, is a regular guest on "Sunday Open House," the Sunday morning program that encourages audience and call-in participation. He is shown here with host Frank Avruch. Earlier in the year, on Physician's Radio Network, Dr. Taylor discussed treatment for patients with positive reaction to tuberculin tests.

aired the story on the evening and late news. Above, pathology technician Eleanor Manseau demonstrates a procedure.

Hope for heart attack victims

By Richard A. Ross
Globe Staff
The one like chest pain of a heart attack gripped 50-year-old George Roseberry at about 6:30 p.m. Friday evening.
A friend who had lodged in Roseberry's right coronary artery, a procedure known as angioplasty, was ready to proceed. Roseberry was already in the coronary catheterization laboratory. The chest aches, which had been rising from a steady weight of his heart muscle, precipitated what

HOPE FOR HEART PATIENTS

ROSTON, Mass. (UPI)—An enzyme that dissolves heart clots can dissolve a heart attack, a study reported by Boston Heart Hospital and Massachusetts General Hospital researchers reported in the New England Journal of Medicine.
The shorter, called streptokinase, causes blood clots to break apart. It was first used to prevent strokes. A heart attack occurs when a blood clot blocks the artery that carries blood to the heart.
If the blockage is removed, the heart muscle can be saved. The enzyme, which is made from a bacteria, was used in the study.

Demonstration that heart muscle can be preserved during the first few hours of a heart attack attracted considerable attention in the national media and abroad. The research led by BI's Dr. John Markis showed that heart muscle can be salvaged by opening blocked coronary arteries with a clot-dissolving enzyme known as streptokinase. After publication in The New England Journal of Medicine, the research subsequently appeared in hundreds of newspapers throughout the United States and overseas and on network and local broadcast media.

Dr. Augustus A. White, III, orthopedic surgeon-in-chief (right), was interviewed by WBZ-TV4 about back pain and how to avoid it, as part of a week-long news series on the

Enzyme remedy for clotting

From Michael Hechler, New York, Oct. 5

The use of an enzyme to dissolve blood clots in the coronary arteries has been found to be a promising new technique for treating heart attacks. The enzyme, called streptokinase, is a clot-dissolving agent that has been used successfully in the treatment of heart attacks. It is a natural enzyme that is found in the blood of some animals, and it is now being used in the treatment of heart attacks in humans.

Common Flu Virus Can Kill Newborn

By John J. Collins, New York, Oct. 5

Researchers at the University of California, San Diego, have found that a common flu virus can kill newborn mice. The virus, called influenza A virus, is a common cause of the flu in humans. It is also a common cause of the flu in newborn mice. The researchers found that the virus can kill newborn mice by attacking their lungs.

Clot-dissolving drug offers hope for heart attack victims

Retreat: DES Effects

Good news for doctors of women given diethylstilbestrol (DES) during pregnancy may eventually emerge. Louis Berk, M.D., from Mount Sinai Hospital in Boston, told the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology the results of a study of the effects of DES on women who had given birth to children with vaginal malformations.

Discover

A New View of Impotence

A great many cases have physiological causes, and doctors are prescribing medical treatment by doing so.

Months after the immediate news reports of a scientific study are published in a medical journal, the story may continue to appear. For example, research by Dr. Richard Spark published in the Journal of the American Medical Association on endocrine causes of sexual impotence continues to be reported over a year later in such publications as Discover and the Boston Globe.

Research showing that recycled blood (autotransfusion) reduces the costs and risks of blood use during surgery continues to be reported in Time, a nationally-syndicated (continued in next column) health column by Dr. Neil Solomon, and on RKO Network Radio in New York.

A landmark finding concerning an enzyme abnormality in the red blood cells of obese people which provides a clue to the reason they may have difficulty losing weight was first reported in The New England Journal of Medicine. Months later, the London magazine Harper's and Queen, Vogue, and Cosmopolitan continued coverage.

Research on DES, the synthetic hormone used to prevent miscarriage in the 1950's, initially published in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology appeared later in Medical Self-Care. Earlier research on sleep disorders treated at the Beth Israel Sleep Unit was reported by the Boston Globe. A study published in the British medical journal, The Lancet, on the link of long-term exposure to artificial ultraviolet light and coal tar on skin cancer in patients with psoriasis, continues to be seen in such magazines as Better Homes and Gardens.

Other research on cold sores, dyslexia, senility, and back pain continues to appear in various publications including Newsweek, Boston Magazine, and New Medical World Weekly (Japan). □

Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow

THE PROJECT is a five-year program to build and renovate facilities needed for the hospital to meet its goals in patient care, teaching, and research. It involves the Charles A. Dana Research Building, atop the Slosberg-Landay Building; the West Tower, a four-story structure over the Feldberg Building; and the Northeast Building, a new four-story facility that will include an enlarged Berenson Emergency Unit, a new radiation therapy department, an enlarged Morse Medical Intensive Care Unit, and expanded clinical laboratories.

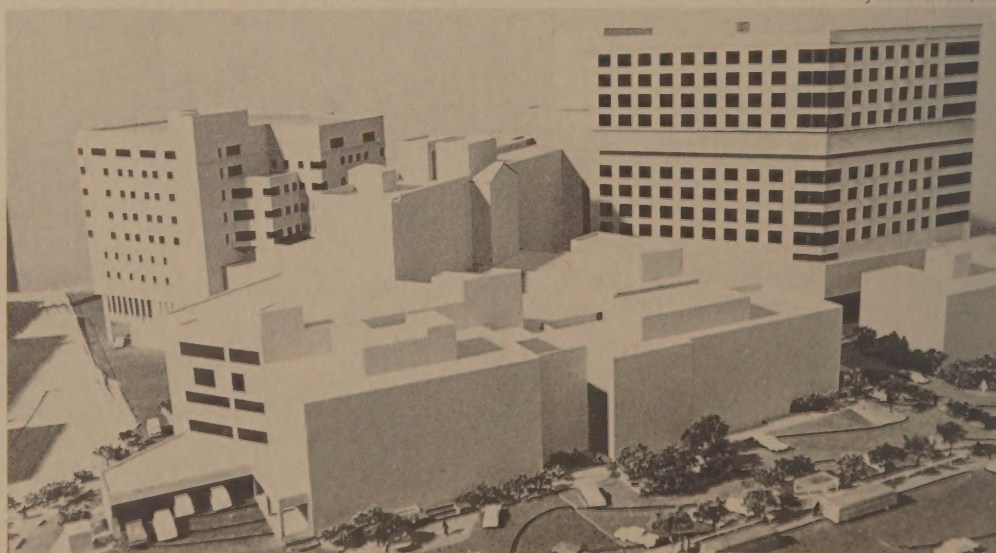

The hospital as it appeared at its dedication in 1928 included the outpatient unit,

A Survey of Staff Activities

Kenneth A. Arndt, MD, dermatology and Joel M. Noe, MD, plastic and reconstructive surgery, were the first authors of "Laser Therapy — Basic Concepts and Nomenclature" published in the December issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

Peter Banks, MD, medicine, was appointed chairman of the patient education committee of the National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis.

Eugene Braunwald, MD, physician-in-chief, medicine, received the 1981 James B. Herrick Award for contributions to the field of clinical cardiology. The annual award is presented by the American Heart Association Council on Clinical Cardiology.

Joyce C. Clifford, RN, MSN, FAAN, vice president for nursing, has assumed the presidency of the American Society for Nursing Service Administrators of the American Hospital Association for a one-year term.

In addition, Clifford published "Managerial Control Versus Professional Autonomy: A Paradox" in the September issue of The Journal of Nursing Administration. She also participated in the Fourth Northeast Canadian/American Health Conference, "Determinants of Change in Health Care," held in Burlington, VT.

Stafford I. Cohen, MD, and Jonathan Glass, MD, medicine, were among the authors of "Radiotherapy as a Cause of Complete Atrioventricular Block in Hodgkin's Disease: An Electrophysiological-Pathological Correlation," published in the April issue of Archives of Internal Medicine.

Joseph Cremone, MD, chief resident in plastic and reconstructive surgery, won first place for his paper "Poland's Syndrome: Classification and Treatment of Hand Anomalies" in a national competition for residents. The award, sponsored by the American Association for Hand Surgery, was presented at a meeting of the Association in New York City.

Priscilla Dasse, RN, director of risk management and quality assurance, was appointed chairperson of the Educational Council of the Association for Practitioners in Infection Control. She also was appointed to the editorial board of the American Journal of Infection Control.

Harold F. Dvorak, MD, pathologist-in-chief, was chairman of the Molecular Pathology Gordon Conference held at Plymouth State College, Plymouth, NH. At the conference he spoke on "Fibrin Deposition in Human and Animal Tumors." Also speaking at the conference from the department of pathology were: Ann M. Dvorak, MD, and Steven J. Galli, MD, on "Similarities between Cells with Natural Killer Function, Basophils and Mast Cells"; Donald Senger, MD, on "Tumor Secreted Vascular Permeability Factor"; and Neil Orenstein, MD, on "Cryptic Tumor Plasminogen Activators."

Charles Elboim, MD, surgery, received a 1981-82 Milton Fund Award for his work on the effect of trauma on memory T cells in response to alloantigen.

Franklin H. Epstein, MD, medicine, was the Donald Church Balfour Visiting Professor of Medicine at the Mayo Medical School and Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN.

Charles Geraci and Brian O'Connor, surgery, have been appointed to the respiratory therapy faculty at Northeastern University.

Norman Geschwind, MD, neurology, spoke on "Hemisphere Specialization: Biological Foundations" and "Anatomical and Pharmacological Asymmetries of the Cerebral Hemispheres" at the 12th World Congress of Neurology in Kyoto, Japan. David M. Bear, MD, behavioral neurology, also spoke at the scientific program on "Hemispheric Specialization of Emotional Functions."

Dr. Geschwind received honorary doctorates from Claude Bernard University in Lyon, France, and Northwestern University in Evanston, IL, in recognition of his pioneering work on the neurological foundations of behavior.

Barbara A. Gilchrest, MD, dermatology, received the Society of Cosmetic Chemists' Annual Award at a presentation in Washington, DC. She published "Pruritus: Pathogenesis, Therapy and Significance in Systemic Disease State" in the July/August issue of Archives of Internal Medicine. Dr. Gilchrest, Jeffrey Stoff, MD, medicine, Martin C. Mihm, Jr., MD, pathology, and Nicholas A. Soter, MD, of Brigham and Women's, published "Human Sunburn Reaction: Biochemical and Histological Study" in the July issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

Donald Glotzer, MD, surgery, published "Proctitis and Colitis Following Diversion of the Fecal Stream" in Gastroenterology (vol. 80, 1981, 438-41).

Ronald P. Goldberg, MD, radiology, presented "Improved Preoperative Localization of Nonpalpable Breast Lesions with a Perforated Mammographic Compression Plate: Experience and Technical Modifications" at the annual scientific meeting of the Radiological Society of North America in Chicago. Morris Simon, MD, and Ferris M. Hall, MD, radiology, were also authors of the paper.

Peter Goldman, MD, clinical pharmacology, presented "Drug Metabolism by Intestinal Bacteria and Its Possible Consequences" at the VII International Symposium on Gnotobiology in Tokyo. He also presented a paper at the Institute of Microbial Chemistry in Tokyo. At the Joint Meeting of the American and Canadian Pharmacology Societies held in Calgary, he spoke on "Have Drug Assays Lived Up to Our Expectations?"

Dr. Goldman was elected to the Board of Trustees of the United States Pharmacopeial Convention. The organization sets standards for drugs and provides drug information to the health care profession and the public.

Robert M. Goldwyn, MD, plastic and reconstructive surgery, was made an honorary member of the Chicago Society of Plastic Surgery. At the annual meeting of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons in New York City, he was the moderator for a panel on "Subcutaneous Mastectomy."

Jerome Hauer, MHS, autotransfusion information and research center, was appointed to the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Interagency Task Force on blood and blood substitutes.

Wilson C. Hayes, PhD, orthopedic biomechanics laboratory, and Augustus A. White III, MD, orthopedic surgery, co-authored "Some Mechanics of Bone Architecture," which was published in Osteoporosis: Recent Advances in Pathogenesis and Treatment (Baltimore: University Park Press, Inc., 1981). Dr. Hayes also was elected to a four-year term on the advisory board of the Journal of Biomechanics, published by the American Society of Biomechanics.

Kathryn Hegedus, RN, DNS, nursing, spoke on "Nursing Documentation: Impact on Quality Patient Care" at the Distinguished Nursing Speakers Program at The Methodist Hospital in Brooklyn.

Gary L. Horowitz, MD, and Howard L. Bleich, MD, computer medicine, co-authored "PaperChase: A Computer Program To Search the Medical Literature," which was published in the October 15 issue of The New England Journal of Medicine.

Ralph J. Kahana, MD, psychiatry, was elected to a two-year term as president of the Boston Psychoanalytic Society and Institute.

Fred Kantrowitz, MD, rheumatology, co-authored Rheumatic and Metabolic Bone Disease in the Elderly (Collamore Press, DC Heath & Co.) with David F. Giansiracusa, MD.

Margot Kruskall, MD, blood bank director, was appointed to the Blood Bank Committee of the Mass. Medical Society and to the Medical Advisory Committee of the American Red Cross Blood Services, Northeast Region.

T. Scott Johnson, MD, pulmonary medicine, received the Clinical Investigator Award from the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute.

George Lewinnek, MD, orthopedic surgery, presented "Healing After Disruption of Intervertebral Discs" to the International Society for the Study of the Lumbar Spine, in Paris.

Steven E. Locke, MD, psychiatry, spoke on "Psychopharmacologic Applications to Cancer" at a meeting of the American Cancer Society in Minneapolis, MN.

Jane B. Mayer, ACSW, social service, presented a two-day workshop in Kaiserslautern, West Germany for US Army counselors on clinical interviewing skills and case management in the areas of financial assistance, child neglect, and family problems.

Miriam Mazor, MD, psychiatry, presented "Counseling the Infertile Couple" at the Harvard Medical School postgraduate course on clinical management of the infertile couple.

Joan B. Mendelsohn, special assistant to the president, was appointed to the Health and Long-Term Care Task Force of the Mayor's Commission on Affairs of the Elderly.

Dr. David Miller, ophthalmology, presented "Use of Healon in Ocular Surgery" at a meeting of the Taiwan Society of Ophthalmology in Taipei. Dr. Miller was the co-author of Complications of Contact Lenses (Boston: Little Brown, 1981).

Joel M. Noe, MD, plastic and reconstructive surgery, was appointed to the editorial board of The Journal of International Laser Medicine and Microsurgery, which is published in French with an English translation. He represents plastic surgery on the editorial board that is composed of representatives from all the disciplines using lasers.

Gerry Page, RN, nursing, was elected 1981-82 membership chairperson of the New England Chapter of the National Intravenous Therapy Association.

Mark Peppercorn, MD, Paul Shapiro, MD, gastroenterology; Donald Antonioli, MD, Harvey Goldman, MD, pathology; and Norman Joffe, MD, radiology, published "Crohn's Disease in the Elderly" in the August issue of the American Journal of Gastroenterology.

Marian Phipps, RN, nursing, was elected president of the New England Chapter of the Association of Rehabilitation Nurses.

Mitchell T. Rabkin, MD, president of Beth Israel and Chairman of the Council of Teaching Hospitals, Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC), was the moderator for a special general session on "Academic Functions in an Increasingly Commercial Hospital Environment" at the annual AAMC meeting in Washington, DC.

As the keynote speaker for the Tenth Annual Catholic Health Assembly held in Dallas, Dr. Rabkin spoke on the impact of for-profit activities on not-for-profit institutions. He was also the keynote speaker for the annual national conference of the Academy of Hospital Public Relations held in Cambridge. His topic, "Managing the Future," dealt with the role of the hospital public relations professional. At the same meeting, Joyce Clifford, RN, MSN, FAAN, nursing, spoke on "The Nursing Shortage: How Can We Help?"

Dr. Rabkin also lectured on "Humanizing the Teaching Hospital" at St. Luke's International Hospital in Tokyo, Japan, and on "Sociologic Change in the Acute Hospital" at the Fourth Northeast Canadian/American Health Conference.

Seymour Rosen, MD, pathology, was co-chairman of a course on "Cutaneous Laser Therapy" held at Beth Israel. He also was the first author of "Glomerular Disease," which was published in the November issue of Human Pathology.

Edwin Salzman, MD, surgery, was appointed Deputy Editor of The New England Journal of Medicine.

G. Paul Sesin, PharmD, clinical pharmacology, published "Pathophysiology and Treatment of Aspiration Pneumonia" in the October issue of The Apothecary.

Peter E. Sifneos, MD, psychiatry, conducted workshops with videotape presentations in Holland, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, and Greece. He also led workshops in Richmond, Long Island, Berkeley, Greenwich, New Orleans, Little Rock, New York City, and New Hampshire.

William Silen, MD, surgery, led a series of surgical seminars in various medical centers in Israel. The seminars were sponsored by the American Physicians Fellowship.

John Skillman, MD, Ronald Weintraub, MD, surgery, Jerome Hauer, MHS, and Robert Thurer, MD, autotransfusion information and research center, presented "Shed Blood Salvage in Cardiac and Vascular Surgery Using the IBM 2991 Blood Cell Processor" at a meeting of the American Association of Blood Banks in Chicago.

Michael Steer, MD, surgery, completed a one-year period as Guggenheim Fellow and Visiting Professor of Biological Chemistry at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, Israel.

Alumni Notes

BI alumni are important members of the Beth Israel family, and the "Alumni Notes" section of the BI News offers an opportunity to keep in touch. Because of space limitations, we may not be able to print all the news we receive, but we will carry as much as possible in each issue, editing for brevity where appropriate. All alumni news will be kept on file for at least six months, and if you have an inquiry about any particular alumnus, send it to "Alumni Notes," BI News, Beth Israel Public Affairs.
